Loss of oxidant monitoring device is near certainty

Carmel Valley will probably lose its oxidant monitoring device within the calendar year, according to John Maloney, director of the Monterey Bay Unified Air Pollution Control District.

Located at Mid-Valley Shopping Center, the device has been in place for two years, but will probably be removed after the heavy summer smog season, Maloney said Monday.

"There's no doubt that, on the basis of citizen interest, if we were to have just one station it would be in Carmel Valley," Malone said, "But there are several other areas which have requested oxidant monitoring devices."

Maloney explained the major problem was one of limited resources in financing and personnel. The instrument itself costs about $7,500, he said, and it would cost about $3,000 a year for regular checks of the device.

"The real financial problem and personnel resource problem arises with any malfunction of the device. We only have one trained technician to maintain our six devices," he said.

Oxidant monitoring devices are located in Salinas, Monterey, Santa Cruz, Hollister and Gonzales, as well as Carmel Valley.

Maloney said the device was originally installed at the Mid-Valley site on a temporary basis and was on loan from the state Air Resources Control Board.

Maloney said Carmel Valley's air quality over the past two years has been "excellent" and has not been appreciably deteriorating. He continued, "Our responsibility is to look at the overall picture for the area. We must look toward the protection of the public health as a whole and for that we need base line information about all areas."

Maloney said the stable air quality of Carmel Valley was almost identical to that of Monterey, even though the fog and cloud cover were significantly different.

Because the air quality does not change drastically on a day to day basis, Maloney said, getting a view of long term changes was the most important issue.

"We don't intend to abandon the Carmel Valley site forever," Maloney said, but indicated it would probably be five to six years before the oxidant monitoring device would be returned for another stint in the Valley.

Maloney indicated the device may be moved to the San Lorenzo Valley, which has not yet been monitored. "We have never had a chance to investigate the air quality of the valley before, and it is developing much more rapidly than Carmel Valley. It will be important to get some basic information for that valley, just as we have for Carmel Valley," he said.

Maloney also said the district would ask the board to purchase a new Dacibi ultraviolet monitoring device on an experimental basis April 10 to be installed at Salinas. He noted several advantages to the new machines over the current liquid devices which utilize potassium iodide.

Bolman resigns

Robert Bolman, Fifth District supervisor for Monterey County has announced his resignation effective March 31.

In a statement to the board of supervisors Tuesday Bolman cited high blood pressure and medical advice to curtail activities as the reason for his resignation. In a final statement to the board Bolman suggested a structural reorginization of the county, examination of the possibility for a charter form of government and tighter controls on expenditures in select areas with a resultant decrease in taxation.

Bolman was appointed by then Governor Reagan to fill the unexpired term of Willard Branson who resigned for health reasons in October, 1974. A resident of Pebble Beach, Boman is a management consultant and had sought the post independent of local Republican party support. Bolman said Wednesday that he would continue his consultant activities.

A five-year resident of the Monterey Peninsula, Bolman retired from international banking in San Francisco. He is a member of the board of trustees of the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies, the California College of Arts and Crafts and is a director of Computer Sciences Corporation and Products Research and Chemical Corporation. He also maintains membership in several local organizations including the Monterey County Taxpayers Association and the Monterey County Foundation for Conservation.

School's audio equipment stolen

Audio equipment valued at $131.90 was stolen from a room at Tularcitos on March 20, according to the Monterey County Sherriff's Department.

Herman McClain reported the theft of two Superscope tape recorders, 10 to 12 magnetic tapes, a set of headphones and a canvas carrying case from a room at the school between 7:15 and 7:40 a.m., between the time he opened the classroom and the time a teacher arrived.

A search of the area by sheriff's deputies and fifth grade students turned up no additional evidence and investigation is continuing. Other reports to the Sheriff's Office this past week included:

Stolen televison: Also on March 19, Ronald Pluta of 11700 Hidden Hills reported his home had been entered and a television set stolen. Missing from the carport are miscellaneous food items and 12 and 22 gauge ammunition.

Forced entry: On March 23, a Laurelas grade resident reported an alarm at a neighbor's home where a forced entry was discovered by sheriff's deputies. No suspect was found and the interior appeared secured.

Credit cards found: Credit cards belonging to a Carmel Valley resident were reported found by the daughter of John Keller and returned to the owner.

Arrest for peace disturbance: David E. Buttrey, 23, of the Holman Guest Ranch, was arrested March 24 at the Stirrup Cup Bar for peace disturbance after sheriff's deputies broke up a fight in progress.

Seaside man faces charges in assaults

A Seaside man was arraigned Monday in Monterey Magistrate Court on charges related to the sexual assaults on three 11-year-old girls over the past two years at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

Detective Norm Snyder of the Monterey County Sheriff's Department said John Edward Callaghan, 26, was arrested at his Seaside home Friday by sheriff's deputies with the cooperation of the Monterey Police Department.

Three young victims of child molestation and rape all picked Callaghan out of a line-up Saturday, Snyder said.

Snyder said the girls were all 11-years old at the time of the attacks, which occurred in May 1973, October 1974 and January 1975.

Sheriff's spokesman said victims of unsolved sex crimes in Monterey County for up to five years ago were given an opportunity to identify their assailant from the same line-up, but no conclusive identifications were made.

Snyder concluded, "This culminates our investigation of these offenses with coordination through the Monterey Police Department and the District Attorney's office. The matter is now up to the courts."

Bail for Callaghan was set at $50,000.

Cummings issue continued---again

by LESLIE JOHNSON

The Monterey County Planning Commission applauded the Upper Carmel Valley Advisory Committee's report on Larry Cummings' proposed Laguna Robles development Wednesday and instructed Cummings to return a third time with more complete engineering reports and more detailed information on house size and placement.

The hearing will resume again April 30, the third continuation of the hearing for a use permit.

The commission strongly supported the detailed report submitted by the committee. Commissioner Marit Evans congratulated them, "I have never before seen such an extensive investigatory report by one of our advisory committees and you are to be commended."

The commission told Cummings that, although it was not presently assuming all the positions outlined by the committee he may wish to consider some of the committee's suggestions, particularly pointing to the question of density.

Committee chairman George Lockwood addressed the commission prior to the continuance to explain the committee's position on the Esquiline Road development which they termed "substantiallly sub-standard in many respects."

In introductory remarks, Lockwood asked the commission to consider the subdivision in normal procedural terms, even though Cummings has already made several improvements on the property, which include an interior loop road, five lakes, two parking pads and installation of certain utilities.

"It is clear to us that the subdivider knowingly proceeded at substantial risk to himself, since there was the likely possibility that various aspects of his development, including density and layout, would, after normal review, be found to be unacceptable," Lockwood read from the committee's letter.

The committee recommended the commission require any and all changes in the public interest "even though the elimination (of some existing improvements) or change may impose a substantial financial burden upon the developer."

Recommended Changes

Briefly, the committee recommended the subdivision be denied unless certain major modifications were made, which include:

Require a more detailed and more accurate layout plan, including a scale model of the development, showing: larger lots; greater spacing between units; better accessibility to the lower area near the river; elimination of units next to a precipitous bank.

Revise the parking plan to include: Turnarounds on long or curved driveways; reduce the large parking area or eliminate it entirely; provide more parking nearer the housing clusters.

Reduce the total density by seven units, from 21 to 14.

Provide a specific exterior plan for each house and for the three bridges.

Provide more extensive landscaping.

Post a bond to protect the homeowner in case of a failure of the lake system.

Reconstruct the road to acceptable standards or require the subdivider to post a bond to provide for its replacement if and when necessary.

Engineering Problems

The problem of engineering of the roads and the lakes was still not resolved Wednesday, although the commission had previously instructed Cummings to produce detailed engineering evaluation of the existing roadways.

Harold Grice, a professional civil engineer who prepared the grading plan for the permit and who provided a preliminary soil report, told the commission that parts of the existing road were "unacceptable" and would have to be brought up to standards.

However, under questioning, Grice reported to the commission the testing he did on the interior roadway, which did not include testing most fill or compaction or the concrete construction itself, used comparisons to standards for sidewalks and driveways, not private roads.

Grice said the substandard sections, compared to compaction for driveways, was not "substantial" and in his opinion could be remedied by forcing a sand and water mixture into various points by vibration.

Under questioning, Grice said he was not prepared to say the road would last 10 years.

Cummings' Response

Cummings acknowledged the committee report was detailed and "caught him off guard" before he asked the commission for further indications of what they would expect before taking action on the planned unit development.

Commissioner Ed Whitaker told Cummings they would require a much more detailed layout showing the exact size location and shape of buildings and bridges in addition to professional engineering accounts for the roadway and the lakes. (Cummings had earlier told the commission he has designed the lakes himself after consulting with various Valley developers who also have similar lakes on their property.)

Cummings bristled when several commissioners suggested the density was too great for the property (Commissioner Evans said she believed the density would have to be reduced by "at least two units.")

"If I can't get the 21 units," he snapped, "I'll just put in duplexes; that's what it's zoned for."

Other commissioners pointed out the capacity of the interior road and the engineering of the lakes system would have a direct influence on the density allowed.

Additional conditions suggested by the advisory committee for consideration by the commission included: Receive assurance from CalAm that they will not contest the filling of the lakes; resolve the condition of a samll parcel of land adjacent to the proposed development; construction of a safe walkway from the Robles del Rio Bridge to Carmel Valley Road (the committee indicated adjacent property owners were in agreement with the cooperative venture).

Bay Day raises $1,200

The sun broke through a month of clouds to shine on Carmel Plaza Sunday afternoon for a Bay Day celebration. The afternoon of games, hamburgers, balloons, and a raffle netted the cooperative nursery school $1,200 toward the $3,000 they still need.

"It was financially a success considering we only had two weeks to prepare for it," said Sue Watkins, Chairman of Bay Day. "Everyone from the Plaza donated items for the raffle and many of the other merchants in town gave us things."

Shamrock benefit

Midst a profusion of shamrocks, members and guests celebrated St. Patrick's Day at the dessert and cart benefit of the Parish Guild of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church.

Floral arrangements of green and white by R. and M. Originals (Ruth Allaire and Myrna Weber) and Bob Rautenberg of the Flower Palace graced the 17 playing tables, and slices of Paddy's cake decorated by the "little people" were enjoyed during the coffee hour.

Arrangements made during a class in floral design conducted the preceding Saturday by Ruth, Myrna, and Bob were featured door prizes. The grand prize was won by Ann Meyers; while Mary Young, Florence Newman, and Royce Kallus also had the luck of the Irish.

Contributing to the success of the affair were Paula Washington, Ruth Hermanson, Gertrude Stoney, Phyliss Walsh and many more too numerous to mention.

Wine and Roses

It was just 11 years ago that the Carmel Valley Lions Club held their first "Wine and Roses Ball," a successful annual benefit for funding Valley projects which will be repeated this Saturday evening at the Monterey Elks Club.

You are invited to make up a party for the 7 to 9 p.m. prime rib dinner preceding the dancing (dinner-dance donations are $10 per person); or dance to the music of the Royales, 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. for $2.50 per person.

Chairman Tom Bordonaro has arranged for radio personality, Sam Salerno, to m.c. the event.

A tape recorder will be be the featured door prize and additional prizes are being acquired by Norman Bullock, Bob Rautenberg, Charlie Gansel, and Clifford Bolgard.

March is a milestone for Alexander A. "Chip" Collins, who marked his 20th anniversary with the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department as honored guest at a party attended by firemen and commissioners, past and present, and their wives. Eleven of Collins' 20 years have been as fire chief. An electric typewriter and a leather bound memory album, admired by Chip and his wife Buffie, were among the gifts of appreciation. See page 11 for more photos, which will be added to the Collins Collection of Clippings.

The traditional Easter Egg Hunt is the most important item on the minds of Carmel Valley's small fry this week. Two year old Amakua Daniel Ortman decided a little advice from a descendent of the Easter bunny wouldn't do any harm before the 1 p.m. hunt Sunday at the Carmel Valley Fire Station. Amakua is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ortman (Ortman is a Valley fireman.) His furry friend is "Snowball," a Calfironia, mother of eight, and the 4-H project of Sharon Collins. Amakua and Snowball hope all boys and girls between one and eight years old will join in the Sunday fun. Bring a basket if you have one or borrow one from the firement. Special prizes will be awarded to the finders of five golden eggs. Mr. E. Bunny has notified the Firemen he will leave eggs in a special area for toddlers. HAPPY EASTER!

Bay School renewal delayed by commission

By CHRIS KELLER

It was a victory for Tom Hudson Tuesday evening when the Coastal Commission failed to grant the Carmel School District a permit for reconstruction of the Bay School.

By delaying action on the re-application until the next meeting of the Coastal Commission, April 7, commissioners may have invalidated the low bid that had been accepted by the school district.

Their action was a severe setback for parents and members of the community who have raised over $23,000 in recent weeks to reconstruct the little red schoolhouse, which has been in use as a school for 95 years.

""We'll never get another low bid like the one we have now," said one mother.

"The bid must be acted upon within a certain amount of time or the contractor will be unable to hold the sub-contractor," explained another.

Shirley Stacey, past president of the Prents Club explained to commissioners that "the bids had already been accepted. If we don't get your approval today we may lose them by tomorrow."

But by 6:30 p.m. several of the commissioners who had been present since 10 a.m. had left, including Chairman Lodato. There was a question as to whether enough commissioners remained for a quorum.

"We've been pulled into a local matter that doesn't concern us," said acting chairman Walters.

"I would like to see these people resolve this among themselves," siad Commissioner Wood.

"Whether or not there should be a school on that site is the important matter, not this particular building," siad commissioner Kramer.

This point was briefly debated, but the lateness of the hour combined with the weariness of the commissioners resulted in a nine to two vote in favor of continuance. Coastal Commission staff member, Lee Otter, believes the commission did not fully understand the importance of granting the permit quickly so that the low bid could be acted upon.

Arguing in favor of preserving, rather than restoring the schoolhouse was Tom Hudson, Edgar Bissantz, of the Monterey County Foundation for Conservation, and Elmarie Dyke, a former teacher and historian from Pacific Grove.

Hudson began his presentation to the Commissioners by reading the full page advertisement he ran in the Sunday edition of the Monterey Herald.

"I can't guarantee which boards are the original boards, but it stands to reason some of those boards are the old ones," he added.

He urged the Commission to act according to the Coastal Plan and preserve the schoolhouse as an historic building.

"Our family has agreed to put up the money to restore and refurbish the old building," said Hudson. "We're going to save that building one way or the other so we're here to ask the Commission to follow its Plan..."

He added that he thought the building could be used as some sort of conservation library and that it might not be necessary to construct the eight-foot fence around the structure.

Edgar Bissantz indicated that the Monterey County Foundation for Conservation would be interested in maintaining the building.

Urging the Commission to grant the permit were members of the Parents Club and the school board. They emphasized that the decision to tear down the original building and reconstruct a replica was not an easy decision, but one that was arrived at after eight years of consideration.

"Very few of the actual boards are 95 years old. It's very difficult to find a board that is 95 years old but it is not difficult to find the tradition," said Mrs. Robert Wirtz, past president of the Parents Club.

Connie Dulay, also of the Parents Club, said the plan to sever the building and use only the newer wing would cost $3,000 over the estimated cost of restoration. "A sound solution would be to give Mr. Hudson the building. He's got a lot of space--let him have the building."

Commissioners asked those present how feasible it would be to move the building to another location, but both Hudson and Mrs. Dyke rejected the idea.

"It would be a very difficult place to move. It would be another building somewhere else," siad Hudson.

Acknowledging that she hadn't been inside the building since 1959, Mrs. Dyke recalled that the building was "on a contour with the land," therefore making it impossible to move.

After about one hour of discussion Commissioner Kramer moved that the motion be continued and commissioners supported the motion 9 to 2 with Commissioners Walters, Patton, Ward, Wood, Anderson, Comacho, Church, Halsted and Kramer voting for continuance and Commissioner Hughes and Dolan against. Commissioner Gibson abstained.

VD policy commended

The Monterey County Health Department has been commended by the State Department of Health for its practice of issuing citations requiring immediate venereal disease medical examination of arrested prostitutes rather than jailing and denying bail to the women until VD tests are complete.

Dr. R.J. Bowersox, director of public health for Monterey County, said available data indicates prostitutes are among the high risk groups contributing to the VD epidemic, but this does not justify denial of due process when bail is readily available even for major crimes of violence.

The progressive program in VD control in Monterey County reflects a philosophy that in a democratic society venereal disease cannot be eradicated by harsh and punitive measures, only education and community cooperation will accomplish it, he concluded.

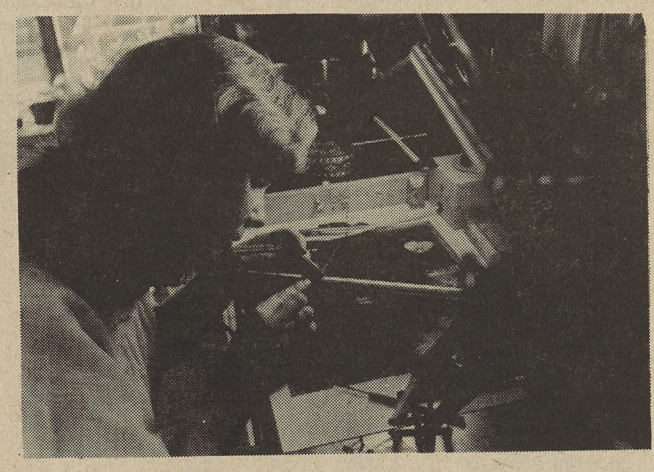
Batista-Moon studio here

By GRACE DONAHUE



A tall, attractive young woman bends over a work bench and carefully places an amethyst into a wrought silver cross. Across the room, a slim, bearded man intently studies several pieces of fruit he has placed on a table and arranges them carefully, for they will become a still life for the photograph he was preparing. Soft, ethereal music sets a mood of tranquility as Barbara Moon and Fernando Batista, a husband and wife team, exercise their separate talents and skills at the Batista-Moon Studio at 9 Del Fino Place, Carmel Valley.

Pleased that the glistening purple gem had been set satisfactorily, Barbara explained the gallery which she and Fernando recently opened.

"We opened our studio in July, 1974. It was a place to work - our workshop at home was getting too cramped," she explained. "I would sit down to do some creative work and would think, 'Should I clean the house or pay the bills or start dinner.' I couldn't be creative. I found I had to be away from the home atmosphere."

"Our dining room table was the jewelry bench," Fernando interjected, his soft Portuguese accent blending with the music. "We needed a place to center our creative energies."

"And I needed a place to do my jewelry work and Fernando needed a place to share his talents with other people," Barbara added, looking fondly at her husband.

A short search brought them to the studio they now occupy, and they began turning the empty room into the bright, attractive place it is today.

Fernando, who was born in Sao Paulo, Brazil, came to the United States in 1969.

"I met a Peace Corps family in Brazil, and they invited me to come to the United States. I accepted."

With the help of his American friends, he enrolled at Buffalo State College in New York where he studied under Leslie Krims. Photography had been Fernando's artisitc forte for several years, and he had worked in a professional photography studio in Brazil prior to coming to America. In 1971, when he had completed his course at Buffalo State, he was accepted at Brooks Institute in Santa Barbara which he terms "one of the best photography schools in the world."

"The tution at Brooks was such that I decided to attend Santa Barbara City College instead," he said.

The Monterey Peninsula's reputation as a major creative center attracted Fernando, and he came to Carmel because he wanted to "be around" such giants in the world of photography as Ansel Adams, Edward Weston and Wynn Bullock.

"Creative spirits attract each other," Barbara said, "so shortly after Fernando arrived here in the fall of 1973, we met at the home of a friend and, well, the rest is history...our history."

Barbara is a native of Los Angeles, but has lived most of her life in the Carmel area and graduated from Carmel High School.

"I was in the restaurant business for awhile but, somehow, my soul was restless. I went to Santa Monica City College where I studied art. My mother is an artist, so creativity is part of my personality."

Subsequently, Barbara became interested in rocks and stones, so she and Fernando attended lapidary classes at Pacific Grove High School. An interest in jewelry evolved from their lapidary studies, and now they both take private classes from Rick Peterson, whom they term "one of the few certified gemologists in California."

Presently, Barbara designs and prepares the wax models for her jewelry. She does all of her own gem cutting, then takes the design and model to a jeweler for the casting and finish work.

"We're getting prepared to do our own fabrication and finishing work. Just as soon as the business grows to accommodate the equipment required, we'll do the whole job," Fernando promised.

To obtain a Batista-Moon original is easy. Barbara's customers tell her what they want, and she goes to work bringing their idea into beautiful reality. Are her customers satifsfied?

"They usually like what I've done better than the thought they would," she smiled, holding up the completed cross for Fernando to admire. "We work in all metals, but silver seems to be the most popular with people," she added.

Usually enough, and although she likes jewelry tremendously, Barbara rarely wears any herself. Both artists are profoundly spiritual and carry their spirituality into their work. Fernando, although he loves photography in general, waits "until the power of creativity comes to me, and then I become totally involved in whatever I am doing. I believe in recording moments, no matter what those moments may be."

As young as Barbara and Fernando are, they have gained a positive spiritual philosophy of life. Fernando attempted to sum up their feelings: "We have to take upon ourselves the responsibility of being here on earth and taking part in society. There is the responsibility to yourself, and if you get the things you ask for, then you have to follow through. You have to make the effort, assume the responsibility, towards others as well."

Barbara nodded agreement, and began preparing an attractive box to house the just-completed cross. Fernando returned to his camera and focused on his still life. He looked up for a moment, his dark, expressive eyes smiling, "Barbara and I do not think about the past or the future. We live for the moment, and we try the best we can for that moment."

The music continues to play softly, never intrusively, in harmony with the rhythm of these two separate talents expressing themselves together.

Flowers compliment fashion in cooperative Sunday event

Over 500 guests sipped cocktails and watched enviously at the Flower Palace throughout Sunday afternoon when Barbara Proctor debuted the spring fashions from Joannes Boutique in an informal modeling session and afternoon party.

The party was a joint effort of Bob Rautenberg, owner of the Flower Palace, and Mrs. Proctor, who wanted to thank their customers and friends and "put a little zip into Sunday in the village."

Mary Lou Roberts at the piano provided musical incentive for a sing-along and everyone did just that. Plentiful hors d'oeuvres and generous cocktails added to the conviviality of the afternoon.

Modeling the fashions were, in addition to Mrs. Proctor, Elaine Shrewsbury, Vivian Moon, Mrs. C.R. Meyers, Mrs. Don Laird, Norma King and Sherie Swiess, all of Carmel Valley.

Beautiful patio gowns, formal afternoon dresses, frothy evening wear, swim fashions and elegant knits were modeled informally all afternoon. Many of the fashions were coordinated with enormous picture hats and Rautenberg's florals provided an exquisite setting.

Among the many guests were Mr. and Mrs. David Taylor, Mrs. William Zumack and their guests from Menlo Park, Dr. and Mrs. Pippin, Mrs. Ruth Holm, Mae Youngberg, Mrs. Betty Young, Elaine Barnes and Mrs. J.R. Young.

Barbara Proctor was a vivacious hostess at the Flower Palace in this Hilo Hatti party dress. At the piano is Mary Lou Roberts.

A husband learns slowly but surely that a dozen long stemmed roses will earn him an exasperated sigh and a budget inspection. A single daffodil in January, however, is worth a batch of homemade bread.

A half ounce of imported perfume doesn't carry nearly the weight with the little woman as 25 pounds of potters' clay. We women hate simple adoration, particularly if it looks like a waste of money.

What we want is specific adoration, pinpointed in such a way that we know our love mate recognizes us for the unique, adorable creatures that we are.

Saturday, my husband brought me a used mule harness. What a dear, thoughtful gift! Downright erotic in fact.

There were two sets of hames and traces (but no Dutch collars.) There was one back pad with breeching and a numbers of odd bits of leftover leather. He'd bid the whole thing splendidly cheap at a non-horse auction.

Unfortunately, the last mule to wear this harness sweated heavily. Afterwards, the harness was hung up to dry for 20 years without annual oilings or being stored in plastic bags or any of the things horsemen do to store unused leather.

I waited until Adorable Husband was safely away from the scene. Then I ran the bathtub full or warm water with mild suds and threw the harness in to soak. I also threw in a few other things that needed doing: A half broken rein, Julia Batchev's mildewed girth (O Polonius, what good advice you gave Laertes!), the collar of a departed dog (Horsemen, never throw away leather, you never know what you might need).

I looked under the sink for my scrub brush, but the kids had taken it out to the corral to use on the pony after they lost my horse brushes. No matter. The kids' hairbrush with stiff nylon bristles would do nicely to scrub harness.

Afterwards, I would run it through the dishwasher. We can rub mule hairs off the dried plates easily. I wonder why no one accepts dinner invitations to our house?

The accumulated grime scrubbed from the leather, I drained the murky tub and turned on the shower to rinse. As soon as I'm done cleaning harness I'll tend to the bathroom. By next week, anyhow.

Next I brought into the tub my gallon can of Lexol and a large pan. I've worn out a plastic baby bath oiling harnesses and am currently using a kitty litter tray--when the cat is not using it.

Of course, we buy harness oil by the gallon. All horsemen buy harness oil by the gallon. How else can you tell the real gung ho from the beginner who purchases little tads of saddle soap in shoe polish cans? Also, the price of Lexol falls nicely into the Christmas gift price range. It's just a matter of training your friends and relatives.

An inch or two of neatsfoot oil in a large pan allows the harness to be immersed. Slowly the lengths and straps, all unbuckled, are passed through the oil and squeegeed through my fingers.

The kitty litter tray progressed down the bathtub as the pile of oiled harness over towered the pile of wet harness. Pieces too large to fit into the tray get slathered with oil by my bare hand. That's another thing about buying neatsfoot oil by the gallon; it encourages you not to be stingy with it. Being economical with leather dressing is like saving money on toothpaste. Such economy can be very expensive.

On the following day, with the sun shining warmly, the whole operation is transferred outdoors. Each piece is oiled again and hung over the corral fence. The warm sun helps the leather to open its pores and the oil to penetrate. The last coils go limp and hang loose. By the time I finish oiling the last pieces, the first are ready to saddle soap.

Oh yes, where other people begin is where we end up. A sponge wrung nearly dry of water is rubbed on the bar of glycerine saddle soap and the suds rubbed into the leather until they disappear. Metal parts can be sanded or polished with an electric tool. A squirt of WD-40 unsticks frozen snaps and buckles before reassembling the harness.

The stiff, dirty harness has undergone a marvelous transformation. It's now strong, pliable and looks expensive.

I strain the dirty neatsfoot oil through a paper towel filter. Sometimes it's good for further use. Also, it can be mixed with hamburger grease (beef tallow to make an excellent hoof dressing.

I'll take the extra set of hames and traces to Carmel Valley Pony Club's Saddle Swap and Tack Trade at Hidden Valley Music Seminars on April 5. With luck, I can buy the heavy work collar there.

I wonder if Adorable Husband, horse hater that he is, would every buy me a mule??

Arboleda Lane

A short cul-de-sac which runs south off Chaparral Road on the ridge north of Carmel Valley Village.

The name, which was given by the developer, is Spanish for "grove" or "wooded place."

Los Arboles

The name, which means "The Trees" in Spanish, was chosen by the then landowner, Dr. Edward P. Marcucci of Carmel Valley, about 20 years ago when he made the subdivision. It is appropriate, because the road has a number of nice trees along its sides. At present, however, the principal distinction of the road would seem to be that it is the site of the residence of Edward Porfirio Soberanes, Sr., a descendent of one of the oldest families in California, founded by Jose Maria Soberanes who was a soldier with Portola's pioneering explorations of 1769 and 1770.

Arriba del Mundo Drive

Arroyo Trail

Rancho Rio Vista and Carmel Knolls subdivisions each has a road by this name. Though not connected, they both run down toward the gulch ("arroyo") that separates the two residential developments, hence the name.

Barbara Way

Short cul-de-sac off the west side of Country Club Drive.

Named by the developer for Barbara Manners Porter, wife of Frank Porter's son Paul, who is the present head of the Porter-Marquard realty firm.

Bear Trap

Bear Trap Ridge, highest point 3,855 feet altitude, rises southwest of the point where the Carmel Valley Road crosses the Carmel River-Arroyo Seco divide. The ridge runs roughly from Southeast to Northwest. Anastasia Canyon curves around its northwestern end and Finch Creek rises on its southeastern extremity. Bear Trap Canyon is a fork off Anastasia Canyon on the western side of the ridge.

In the early days, people used to trap grizzly bear in the canyon for the bull-and-bear fights that were then popular entertainments in California.

We cut electric and gas use 32% in PG&E offices and service buildings.

William C. Wyatt, PG&E Supervising Building Engineer.

We're doing a lot of belt tightening here at PG&E in order to cut down costs in every way possible. And I'm responsible for cutting down energy use in a complex of PG&E buildings.

We turn down thermostats and close drapes at night to minimize heat loss.

Throughout our offices and service centers we reduced the use of electricity and gas by 32%. Here's how you can save on heating and cooling your home:

Most attics in California aren't insulated. You can trim your heating costs up to 20% when your attic is insulated up to "R-19," the standard recommended by the National Bureau of Standards. And if your house is air conditioned you'll save on summer cooling costs, too.

Also, during warm weather, try a less refrigerated setting on the air conditioner. You'll find 78° quite comfortable.

In winter, lower the thermostat to 68° or less during the day and 60° during the night. In fact, if your thermostat is set 6° lower this year than last, you stand to lower your fuel consumption up to 10%.

On sunny days, open the drapes and let the sun warm your home, naturally. And by closing the drapes again in the evening, you can help stop the heat lost through the windows.

If you have a fireplace, shut the damper when the fire's out to prevent heat from escaping up the chimney. Also, keep all exterior doors—including those to the garage, attic and basement—tightly closed.

Dirty furnace filters can block heat, so clean or replace them regularly. And don't forget to have your furnace serviced at least once a year. It'll not only heat your home more efficiently, but the extra savings on fuel will make you feel even more comfortable.

Save energy-you'll save money, too.

Collins honored for 20 years service

Carmel Valley's Volunteer Firemen paid this tribute to Chief "Chip" Collins in admiration of his 20 years of service to the Valley department:

Dear Chip:

As Tuesday, March 4th, marked your 20th anniversary of involvement with the Carmel Valley Fire District, we want to take a few moments to salute you for a job well done.

Progressing from a young man from New Jersey to Fire Chief of our district has been twenty years of time devoted to service beyond self. For the emergency calls you handled alone, we salute you. For the days off you worked, we salute you. For the concern and assistance you have given the handicapped and aged, we salute you. For your love of your fellowman, we salute you. For your patience, we thank you. For your continuous good humor, we thank you. For the extra care and concern you have shown to all of us, we thank you.

A job well done, Chief, we are all proud of you.

"Remembering when" as they peruse the anniversary scrap book are Sam Corona (retired fireman), Chief Collins, and Buelah Corona, who holds a life membership in the Ladies' Fire Auxiliary.

'Breath of Spring' to open

"Breath of Spring," a whimsical British comedy that glances at the problems that can beset those who are in "the tea-time of life," will open at Carmel's Studio Theatre on Friday, March 28. The play will be staged Friday, Saturday, and Sunday nights through May 3, with the theatre closed for Easter Sunday.

What does one do when the younger world no longer wants the services and experiences of those with "one gray hair and a wrinkle?" Especially when they want to help those in need.

Drawing upon the traditional image of Robin Hood, a rather unorthodox approach to the problems of old age has been devised in the play. Rather than sit by the fire and fret, the lovely group of eccentrics on stage fight back by "taking" from the rich and giving to the poor.

What they take is furs, which are then converted to cash and the funds distributed. Of course, even the well organized "gang" of Dame Bee, the Lady Alice, Nan and Hattie are not perfect. Eventually Scotland Yard rears its ugly head in the form of an inspector and his patrolman, forcing the group to call in the expertise of Lily, the maid who has served time for...stealing furs! She does force them to agree to stop their thievery and life once again looks dull for the group...or does it?

Leading roles in the comedy will be played by Anita Tonn, in the character of Nan; Bob Lotz, in the character of Brigadier Albert Rayne; Heather Arenchild, as Lily Thompson; Gertrude Chappell, as Alice; Betty Fowlston as Bee; Florence Larson as Hattie; Alexey Lopukhin as Pape; and Don Meharry as Kemp.

'Odd Couple' cast set

Director Bob Bradac has completed casting for Community Theatre's production of "The Odd Couple," to open April 18.

Playing the part of Speed will be Frank Favalora; Murray, Jim Thomas; Toy, Sheldon Sellars; Vinnie, Chris Thomas; Oscar Madison, Bill Scholefield; Felix Ungar, Jack Wood; Gwendolyn Pigeon, Sandie Garris; and Cecily Pegeon, Frances Bakun.

The popular Neil Simon comedy, which has become a film and successful television series, concerns two men, Oscar and Felix, both in the throes of divorce who decide to share a New York apartment. Though the best of friends, their contrasting personalities make for hilarious situations involving their poke-playing cronies and two young English ladies living upstairs.

This will be the first production in Community Theatre's new location on Mission Street near Eighth in Carmel's Sunset Center. Announcements about theater memberships and tickets for the play, scheduled to open April 18, will be made soon.

'Twelfth Night' scheduled

Casting has been completed for the Monterey Peninsula College Players production of Shakespeare's comedy "Twelfth Night," which has performances scheduled to begin April 11 in the SRO Theatre.

According to Ramie Wikdahl, director, the story of "Twelfth Night" deals with the twins, Viola and Sebastian, separated at a young age, who confuse the members of the city of Illyria. While Viola searches for her brother, Sebastian is mistaken for his sister. Meanwhile, all the gentlemen are vying for the hand of the Countess Olivia, who has fallen in love with Viola, thinking she is Sebastian.

The cast of MPC Players includes Diana Hjul as Viola, Tom Sanchez as Sebastian, Richard Andante as Malvolio, Stephanie Cunningham as Olivia, Eric J. Hartzell as Sir Andrew Augecheek, Shirleen Holt as Maria and Eric Conrad Elliott as Sir Toby Belch.

Supporting characters include Jeff Burkhardt as Antonio, Michael C. King as Count Orsino, Christy Botkins as Feste, Ann Fajilan as Fabian, John Watkins as Curio, Ed Mooney as Valentine, Tim Thomas as the sea captain, and Kevin Lenzen as the priest.

" Dear Earthlings" at MPC

Casting has been completed for "Dear Earthlings," an original musical penned by Carmel Valley president Joan Hopkins and performances have been slated for April 4-5 at Monterey Peninsula College.

The story deals with two aliens from outer space who arrive on earth to take the earthlings to their planet wnere they see the story of "sleeping Beauty" unfold, according to Ms. Hopkins, who is also directing the performance.

The cast of MPC Players includes Carole Moreland as the Princess, Lola Bindel as Hilogic, Laura Dickson as the Fairy Sister, Debbie Rye as the Queen, Gertie Snyder as Zorina, Ed Mooney as the Prince, Curtis Bridgeforth as Theo, Linda Sparks as Cleo, Paul Wood as the King and Bruce Babcock as the Jester.

Each of the songs and music was composed by Ms. Hopkins. Choreography is by Ms. Dickson and assistant direction by Ms. Sparks.

Ryan places second

Jeffrey Ryan of Carmel High School won second place and $100 in the zone competition of the Bank of America's 1975 Achievement Awards program Wednesday, held in Monterey. He competed in math and science.

Judy Koon, also of Carmel High, won third place and $75 in the vocational arts competition.

GOLF PREVIEW

The 1975 Carmel High golf team has an almost impossible task of repeating last year's performance. Last year, the Padres were co-champions with Leland High for the entire Central Coast Section. That was the first time a Carmel team had ever accomplished that feat.

This year's team is led by returning all-leaguer, senior Kim Cater. Along with Cater, the rest of the team, as announced by coach Buzz Rainer; includes seniors Chris Ford, Dan Foreman and Tony Evoniuk, freshmen Will Wilkinson, juniors Tim Blakeslee and Cerry Corcan and sophomore Jess Bragg. The four seniors all played on last year's championship team.

Rainer who is in his 16th year as Carmel golf coach, feels that this year's team has the potential to win the league. But in order to beat out a very strong Pacific Grove club, they will all have to live up to their potential.

It is interesting to note the domination of Carmel and P.G. teams in the Mission Trail Athletic Golf League the past five years. In 1970, Carmel took the title; in 1971, Carmel and P.G. shared the crown; in 1972 P.G. won the league. In 1973 Carmel and P.G. shared the title, and once again last year, the two schools were co-champions of the league.

So far this year, the Carmel golfers have defeated Gilroy, tied Salinas and lost to Aptos. In their first league match of the season, the Padres won over Hollister, as freshmen Will Wilkinson paced Carmel, shooting a one under par 71, at Hollister's Ridgemark course. The Padres next match is with King City today.

The Carmel golfers raised their undefeated league record to 3-0 with convincing victories over Palma and King City last week.

Against Palma on March 17, the Padres won easily 495-600 in a match played at Pebble Beach. Carmel's Kim Cater was medalist with a 74 and Tony Evonuik fired a 78 to pace the Padres. Chris Ford shot an 81 while Will Wilkinson and Dan Foreman carded 84's and Jess Bragg came in with a 92 for Carmel. Palma's best score of the day was by Gene Navaroli who could only manage a 92.

At King City's home course, the Padres led by Evoniuk's 68 won 433-473. Other Carmel scores were Wilkinson and Ford - 71; Cater and Foreman - 73; and Kerry Corcoran - 77.

P.G. -- Padre game tied

Carmel's Varsity baseball team opened their league season last Thursday at Pacific Grove when they played the Breakers. In a game highlighted by superb pitching efforts by Carmel's Bob Egli and P.G.'s Rick Kehoe, the game was called at the end of 13 innings due to darkness, and the score was tied at 1-1. The game will not be made up unless it has a bearing on the final standings.

The Padres scored their lone run in the third inning, when Chris Erdle scored on an error. In the last inning of regulation play, the bottom of the seventh, P.G. scored their run as Steve Dill singled home Ray Cotham from second base to knot the game.

It is not very often that you see one high school pitcher go 12 innings; yet alone two! Both Egli and Kehoe pitched their hearts out, but to no avail as neither of their clubs could push across a run in the extra innings.

Earlier in the week, the Padres were crushed by Pioneer of San Jose 13-6, in a practice game. As has happened often this year, the Padres were hurt by their own mistakes. This time they made seven errors, which helped contribute five unearned runs.

Pioneer broke loose in the fourth inning when they scored five times to take a 6-2 lead. Included in the inning was a grand slam homerun by Greg Robles off Padre pitcher Pete O'Brien. Another big inning was to follow in the sixth, as the Padres were racked for six runs, and Pioneer held a 13-3 advantage.

About the only excitement on the day for Carmel was a solo homerun by first baseman Jeff Ryan in the second inning. The Varsity's record now stands at 5-4-1 and they are currently playing in the Soquel Easter Tournament.

Meanwhile, the Carmel Junior Varsity dropped two games last week. They lost to Pioneer 6-5, and fell to P.G. 2-1. For the Padres, Kelly Ragan and Mike Harbert were bright spots in both games. Against Pioneer, Ragan collected two runs batted in and Harbert had one. In the P.G. game, Ragan pitched the entire seven innings, allowing only five hits, and was two for three at the plate. Harbert also rapped out two hits in three attempts and knocked in the lone Carmel run.

In the Carmel J.V. Baseball Tournament held this week, the Padres defeated Gonzales 7-5 in a first round game. Greg Miller's two-run homer in the bottom of the sixth inning broke the tie.

The Carmel Freshmen lifted their league record to 4-0 with two 5-4 victories over Hollister last Saturday at Carmel. In the first game, the Padres had to go four extra innings to defeat Hollister, 5-4. In the second game, Carmel rallied for four runs in the last innings and won again 5-4.

CHS to present 'Tarot Talisman'

"Tarot Talisman," a musical dance concert will be performed by Carmel High students April 4 and 5 at 8 p.m. in the Sunset Center.

The concert, which has been in preparation for nearly seven months, is a combination of poetry film, music and dances. The theme of the concert is based on the symbolic Tarot cards. All the Tarot cards have different and special meanings. There will be a dance for each of the suits; swords, wands, cups and pentacles.

The concert is being held at Sunset Center due to a lack of space at the high school. The concert will run only two nights, because dance advisor MariKay Bridges said, "It is too expensive to run any longer. It is still very expensive to run for even the two nights." Miss Bridges went on to say that this is the first interdisciplinary activity ever taken on by Carmel High students.

In order to present the show, Miss Bridges and her group has required a great deal of help. The costumes were made by Sue Williams' Home Economics classes. She was aided by Chris Brady, Julie Arthur, Lauri Hoffer, Sonia Weisman and Leslie Pankratz. The programs and posters were done by Bill Stone and his art classes. The films for the concert have been handled by Dick Hilton and the Carmel High School film department. One of the production highlights will be a poetry publication put out by Lynn Hayes and her creative writing classes.

The students involved in the thirteen different dances are: student advisors Sabrina Rico, Sonia Weisman, Jody Emerson, Theresa Crowley, Paula McPherson, Mo Horan, Livia Guisi, Candy Kaller, Laura Wylie, Anita Campbell, Lisa Selle and Lisa Burroughs. Others include: Leslie Surman, Roxanne Slaughter, Renee Reese, Caroline Drye, Barbara Bell, Sarah Strum, Jane Porter, Alison Bleisner and Anina Marcus. There are four male dancers in the concert. Phil Beardsley, Mike Criscola, John Anderson, and Chris Brady are the dancers and piano player Pat Hill and poetry reader David Williams round out the boys in the production.

Tickets will be available for $1 at the main counter in the Carmel High school office, or at the door on the night of the show.

Let's hear from you. Crocker's changing banking.

For a long time, the business of banking has been run one way–the bank's way.

But now, we're changing all that. I'm Tom Wilcox, Chairman of the Board of Crocker Bank.

Most people feel that most banks are just too big and too busy to care. And in all too many cases a bank's performances prove that the customer once again is right.

The old joke about "Bankers' Hours" loses its charm after you've run three blocks to find the door already locked.

And a crowded line at a teller's window is a lousy place to spend your lunch hour. Particularly when there are other windows open–but no tellers.

So, Crocker's changing banking. Listening to you and responding–as quickly as possible.

Starting with the problems that we already know bother you. Things like long lines and short hours.

In the weeks and months to come, we'll be changing schedules and procedures whenever and wherever possible. Remolding and revitalizing our ways to fit yours.

We think it's a good idea, a bank that's willing to listen to you for a change.

So, let us hear from you. Just write, Thomas R. Wilcox, Chairman of the Board of Crocker Bank, P.O. Box 38029, San Francisco 94138.

And then come into Crocker and try banking your way for a change.
